3 COMMON SAVINGS HABITS TO OVERCOME

To be successful in investing one has to do only a few things right as long as there are not too many mistakes. Warren Buffet and many other leading wealth managers believe this. The game of investing can be won with patience, rationale and discipline more than intelligence or intense activity. As investors, while we should focus on the right things, there are also a few things which we normally ignore. A few mistakes of action or behaviour can cost us a lot of wealth and ruin the gains which we may make from our right decisions. We attempt to highlight some of these mistakes in this article to help you be aware...

NOT INCREASING SAVINGS WITH TIME

We normally witness a rise in our savings on a yearly basis which is generally in the inflation range, at the lower end. In planning our budgets, we account for a rise in expenses – from entertainment to children school fees and from maid salary to new gadgets. But rarely do we increase the savings rate. That is the default balance figure remaining after accounting for rise in everything else.

Your savings has to increase with time. If you did an SIP of say 10,000 3 years back but have not increased it, you are making a mistake. Effectively it means that you are saving a lot less today than 3 years ago. Assuming a retail inflation of 10%, it means that you have reduced your savings to ₹7,513/- from 10,000 3 years ago in real terms while your income has increased.

Example	3 Years Ago	Present
Monthly Earning	1,00,000	1,40,000
SIP	10,000	10,000
Savings Rate	10.00%	7.14%
Additional SIP	-	4,000

With time, be it any form or method of saving, the savings rate has to rise. While it may sound difficult, we should aim to increase our savings by at least the rate of inflation, every year, and then accordingly adjust our other budget figures. That means, starting additional SIPs or increasing the SIP amount. The higher the savings rate rise, the better will be your financial future.

Another common mistake we often commit is when we do not look ourselves at a consolidated level in terms of our investments. We are more comfortable looking at different investments with differ shades of color. For real estate, we have a different approach and risk profile, for bank deposits or other traditional fixed income savings, we have an entirely different approach. When it comes to mutual funds or equities, again our risk appetite and approach begins to differ.

For all these different avenues of investments, be it own business, real estate, gold, fixed income or equities, it is very possible that we hold different risk profile and returns expectations. For example, we may sound very comfortable with real estate for long term and would be happy to blindly stay invested for over 5 years but when it comes to mutual funds & equities, we may demand performance even in short periods of time and then be impatient if expectations are not met. We may never sell real estate if it is at a loss but would be most eager to offload any non-performing stock immediately.

We should avoid adopting different perspectives to investments and start looking at our entire portfolio holistically. We should align our entire portfolio with our financial goals and risk profile. While this may not appear simple, it is not very difficult either. We should make it a habit of looking at our overall percentage exposure to equities, debt and physical assets. Only then can we understand our overall asset allocation and if we are conservative or aggressive in our approach.

TOO MUCH OBSESSION WITH EQUITIES & PERFORMANCE

Finding too much focus or obsession on equities is not uncommon. In fact for most of us, it would be a sort of ritual to see holdings and performance of mutual fund equity schemes or direct equities on a very frequent basis. We instantly look into our portfolio after any news headline or event affecting the markets. Do we show such level of inquisitiveness or impatience for other asset classes? Is it advised?

The answer is evidently no. While we do need to be active and aware of our portfolio, having said so, we should also give adequate time for equity asset class to show their true nature. We may review and make changes in our portfolio at a frequency of say six months at a minimum or when any major event happens in our life or in markets. Beyond that, it is not advised to focus primarily on either performance or actual underlying holdings.

What should be our primary focus then?

Our focus should be on the overall asset allocation, as discussed earlier. There is no point in getting a very handsome returns on equities if the overall % allocation is negligible in your portfolio. Even with average returns, you could do better if your asset allocation was appropriate for you. In the given example, an investor with higher equity holdings performs better with half the returns than an investor with low holdings.

	Portfolio	Holding	Returns	Portfolio Impact
Investor A	Equity	10.00%	20.00%	2.00%
	Debt	90.00%	7.00%	6.30%
	Total	100.00%	NA	8.30%
Investor B	Equity	50.00%	10.00%	5.00%
	Debt	50.00%	7.00%	3.50%
	Total	100.00%	NA	8.50%

CONCLUSION

There are many behavioural aspects to investing. In this article, we have discussed some habits which do not fall under the preview of emotions or rationality or decision making. The above behaviours or mistakes are something we practice without really being aware of it. It is time that we recognise them and take remedial actions for correcting these behaviours. The correction demands that we change our approach to how we look at our portfolios while being updated with our savings plan as we prosper in life.

There is science behind the progress of humans. And the foundation of successful societies are built on pillars of logic and science. Progress happens when work gets done by those who are experts as they do their things better than others. In our lives, we entrust our confidence in the expertise of individuals like doctors, lawyers, accountants and even astrologers. Many would not think twice before putting up their lives or wealth into their hands. We revere these specialists in our lives and given an option, you would definitely be inclined to choose an expert to guide us. But is it true for every thing?

The answer is No. There is one exception – a very important aspect of our lives for which we do not truly have or follow advisors in the right spirit. Yes; it is about our savings & investments. Most of us do not have a proper financial advisor. Even those who do have, consult their financial advisors only for a part of their investments and other financial matters. Worst, when an advise is received, most of us are not very keen to follow it in full spirit.

THE MYTH

Somehow, when it comes to managing money, we tend to feel like experts ourselves. Most of us doubt, question the logic and argue with our financial advisors on recommendations. Even after years of sub-optimal performance, we tend to overrate our intelligence and expertise in managing money and worst, we often continue to follow our own beliefs. We would listen almost anybody from relatives to friends to neighbours for advice – almost akin to following witch doctors or astrologers! We believe that if we put our mind into it, we could do it very well and without being skeptical about it. This is sadly true for most of us.

THE REALITY

The truth is that being a successful investor is not about intelligence or logics or deep expertise. A highly educated Ph. D may not be able to give you better returns than your present advisor. The true role of an advisor would be to manage your savings & investment behaviour more than actually managing the portfolio. He can help bring discipline, stability in investing approach, sense of urgency, help in realisation of needs, controlling extreme money habits, emotions and so on.

An advisor would help you look at a bigger picture and handle finances holistically. The advisor would help us in managing our emotions of being greedy or being fearful at different times during different market situations. He would be the driving force behind identifying your life goals and setting plans to achieve them. This is not an impossible thing for any reasonably educated person to do on their own. But the question is how many of us do it? Being human, how many of us have full control of our behaviour, habits & emotions?

THE SCIENCE BEHIND INVESTING

Having said that, the question again arises – can we manage our investments on our own, assuming we can handle our emotions / behaviour as desired (a tall task in itself!). The answer is 'No' again. Except for a minuscule population, most of us are not adequately aware and knowledgeable enough to plan for our investment needs adequately.

Investing is a science and there are defined academic branches of studies offering degrees and certifications in the field. Know that there are backdrops to investment strategies and financial planning. Though you may not have heard the terms of Modern Portfolio Theory, theory of interest, efficient market hypothesis and so on, you would have enjoyed the fruits of such theories in practical terms. Financial planning itself is based on a defined six step process with many layers beneath to unravel.

Constructing a portfolio and selecting products is not as easy as it sounds and perhaps an expert guidance can do wonders as opposed to advice from those of the astrologers' kind. Even if the knowledge and expertise is there, there is again a question of time and priority for this work for you. In addition, there is also the aspect of technology, accessibility and operations which can be addressed effectively by advisors without you ever getting bothered about them.

EXPERIENCE IS A BIASED TEACHER

In investing we give weightage to our personal experiences and events. These experiences shape our beliefs and approach to investing. If we had experienced losses in past, irrespective of the reason, we would be skeptical of investing again in similar assets, even if the opportunities were better this time. Our own experiences can often prove to be unreliable, biased, flavoured with emotions capturing a period outdated in today's context. Thus, to boast of our past experience and mask it as expertise can be a fatal thing to do to our investments, especially when we are not professionals who try to practice purely on logics & research.

CONCLUSION

In the words of Warren Buffet – “You don't need to be a rocket scientist. Investing is not a game where the guy with 160 IQ beats the guy with a 130 IQ.” But it also true that an investor's worst enemy is not the markets but the investor himself. And that is because of everything human in us that overshadows pure logic and rationale in decision making. Be our own over-confidence, ego, emotions, experience and so on. The fact is that we should should take wealth management as seriously as any other profession and look for expertise in managing not just our wealth but also our humane attributes.

RBI has reduced interest rate sharply in last quarterly review. What is your assessment on RBI's credit policy review?

We believe that the RBI's larger-than-expected reduction in the Repo Rate is aimed at jump-starting economic activities in the busy-season with lower borrowing costs. The RBI governor had alluded to this fact by mentioning that investment would like to respond more strongly if there was more monetary stimulus in the pipeline. We expect the RBI to maintain an accommodative stance in the current environment of sub-optimal economic growth and lower consumer inflation in the medium-term.

What is your expectation on interest rates in coming one year?

With front-loading of rate cuts on Sep 29, 2015, we expect the RBI to maintain the status quo on rates till March 31, 2016. Further review of the Repo Rate will be based on the state of economic slack, Fed lift-off, commodity price cycle, global economic landscape, fund flows in the Emerging Markets as well as relative performance of EM currencies against the dollar, in our opinion.

Do you think long duration bonds still good for investments considering recent rally in Gsec after rate cut?

The Reserve Bank of India has reduced the Repo Rate by 125 basis points since December 31, 2014. However, yields of long-term government bonds with residual maturity of more than 10Y have declined by around 30 basis points during that period. At the same time, yields of short-term government bonds have declined more in response to Repo rate reductions. Based on that, fixed income funds with average maturities between 2Y to 5Y have relatively out-performed income funds and Gilt Funds on YTD basis as on Sep 30, 2015. We expect this trend to continue as the yield curve turns steeper between 5Y & 10Y segment.

How currency has impact on debt markets?

Currencies have an important role to play in bond markets in our opinion. The USD had begun to strengthen since May 2015 on expectations of the Fed lift-off in September 2015. This had put downward pressure on some EM currencies. Weakening of commodity prices have also resulted in weakening of commodity producing countries against the dollar. These developments caused in outflows from EM equities and debt back to DM equities and debt. Outflows from EM as well as sharp fall in commodity prices have resulted in widening of credit spreads in some economies in the last three months. Indian rupee had relatively out-performed this year amid improvement in the economic landscape with lower commodity prices helping us reduce our trade deficit and keeping inflationary pressure in check.

How do you think deficient monsoon will have impact on inflation?

Generally, lower rains mean lower crop production. However, a proactive government could offset lower production of food grains by making available required food stock at affordable prices. We believe that the government is likely to address supply-side concerns by taking a combination of steps. This will likely mitigate impact of lower production on food prices in our opinion.

MF NEWS

Equity MF folio count up by 21 lakh in Apr-Sept

Equity mutual funds witnessed an addition of over 21 lakh investor accounts or folios in the first six months of the current fiscal (2015-16), primarily because of strong retail participation. This follows an addition of 25 lakh folios for the entire last fiscal, 2014-15. Folios are numbers designated for individual investor accounts, though one investor can have multiple ones. According to the Securities and Exchange Board of India data on investor accounts with 44 fund houses, the number of equity folios jumped to 3,38,40,981 last month from 31,691,619 at March-end, a gain of 21.5 lakh. Before 2014-15, there was a complete lull in equity inflows as well as generation of new folios, but in the past one year, equity markets have come back to life and yielded solid returns. Industry experts said heightened investor interest has led to a sharp increase in retail folios.

Reliance MF eyes more acquisitions after Goldman Sachs buy

After acquiring Goldman Sachs India mutual fund business, top fund house Reliance Capital Asset Management (RCAM) is looking for more acquisitions in this highly-fragmented market. While a number of foreign players have exited the market in recent years, there would be still be 43 fund houses present in the country after Goldman Sachs exit. However, there are only five fund houses that have average Asset Under Management (AUM) of more than ₹1 lakh crore - namely HDFC MF, ICICI Pru, Reliance MF, Birla Sunlife MF and UTI Mutual Fund. SBI Mutual Fund, Kotak Mahindra MF, IDFC MF and Franklin Templeton MF are among those with AUMs of over ₹50,000 crore each, while a number of others have much lower asset bases - making this ₹13 lakh crore sector ripe for further consolidation.

AMCs should reduce costs: U K Sinha

SEBI Chief U K Sinha has reiterated that AMCs should reduce costs in order to expand the reach of mutual funds. "In asset management in India, the cost is quite high. We are one of the six countries where it is more than 2%. If we really want to expand the reach of mutual funds, then this has to be reduced," he was quoted in Value Research magazine published in the anniversary issue of Mutual Fund Insights. He said that the TER charged by AMCs is high as compared to international standards. The Sumit Bose committee has also recommended that the TER charged by AMCs should come down.

Core industries grow 3.2% in September

The index of the output of eight core sectors grew 3.2 per cent in September against the same month last year. The growth was primarily due to an increase in fertilizer production, electricity generation and coal production, according to the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. The core sector growth registered in September last year was 1.9 per cent. The output growth in September this year was also more than 2.6 per cent recorded in August. The eight core industries - coal, crude oil, natural gas, refinery products, fertilisers, steel, cement and electricity account for 38 per cent of the total industrial production in the country.

India's exports will do relatively well in 2016, says UN report

Exports from India and Vietnam are expected to relatively do well in 2016 as their shipments are largely directed to advanced economies in Europe and North America that are expected to expand in the coming year, a United Nations report has said. The Asia-Pacific region, which includes India, China, Japan, Russia, and the ASEAN nations, among others, will hold its position as the largest trading region in the world despite the lowering of trade growth prospects due to global slowdown, the Asia-Pacific Trade and Investment Report 2015 pointed out. Countries, heavily dependent on China for their exports, however, will not do well, due to the slowdown in the country's economy, the report added.

Manufacturing PMI at 22-month low in October

A slower rise in new business inflows resulted in weaker expansion of manufacturing output, which came in at a 22-month low in October, a private survey showed. The Nikkei India Manufacturing Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) - a composite single-figure indicator of manufacturing performance fell to 50.7 in October from 51.2 in September. The 50 mark divides expansion (above 50) from contraction. This is the third straight monthly fall for the manufacturing PMI and could prompt the government to go in for structural reforms in the coming days. In October, the rate of expansion in both production and order books was the weakest in the current 24-month sequence of growth. A sub-index covering new orders dropped to a two-year low of 51.2 from 52.5 in September.

Moody's upgrades Indian banking sector outlook to stable

Moody's Investors Service upgraded its outlook for India's banking system to 'stable' from 'negative' on expectation that a gradual improvement in the operating environment for lenders will lead to lesser growth in bad loans in future. Moody's had assigned a negative

India's FY16 GDP growth estimate revised to 7.5%: India Ratings

India Ratings revised downwards to 7.5 per cent the GDP growth forecast, from earlier estimate of 7.7 per cent, for the current financial year because of weak agricultural growth. The downward revision in forecast is primarily due to the lower agricultural growth caused by a deficient rainfall, India Ratings and Research said in a report. It expects agricultural growth to expand 0.9 per cent this fiscal from 0.2 per cent of FY15. The report said that although the sector has over the years become more resilient to monsoon shocks, agricultural output in a large parts is still dependent on rains. It added that although investment is showing signs of incipient recovery, a full blown investment recovery will take another 12-18 months.

Govt unveils new draft civil aviation policy, to raise FDI limit beyond 50%

The government released its draft civil aviation policy for inputs from stakeholders before finalisation. It proposed raising foreign direct investment in domestic airlines from the current 49 per cent to over 50 per cent, besides a slew of tax incentives for airlines and maintenance works. Offering travellers an incentive to fly to small towns at affordable rates and easing the norms for domestic carriers to operate services abroad were some of the highlights of the new draft aviation policy. The primary aim of the policy is to ensure a tariff of no more than Rs 2,500 per ticket for each flying-hour with a host of incentives and other benefits to both airport developers and operators to make that happen.

MNI said manufacturing and construction companies had reported a rise in sentiment, but noted confidence among service sector companies fell for a fourth consecutive month despite the Reserve
